WORLD WAR VETERANS MOBILISED TO HALT U.S. STRIKE RIOTING

COMMUNIST ROUND-UP ORDERED

ONE STRIKER KILLED AS 500 CLASH WITH NATIONAL GUARDS

UNION LEADER HURT

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received September 14, 8.48 a.m.)

WOODSOCKET, R.I., TO-DAY.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN AND 500 STRIKERS CLASHED HERE YESTERDAY, RESULTING IN ONE STRIKER BEING KILLED AND SIX INJURED, FOUR SERIOUSLY. SCORES RECEIVED MINOR INJURIES THROUGH BEING BEATEN.

At Providence Governor Green, of Rhode Island, has ordered the mobilisation of 1,000 world-war veterans to help to halt the rioting, and has ordered a state-wide round-up of Communist agitators, whom he blames for the majority of the disorders.

HE HAS CALLED A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE TO ASK FOR U.S.$100,000 APPROPRIATION WITH WHICH TO PAY THE NATIONAL GUARDSMEN, EXTRA POLICE AND WAR VETERANS.

Following Mr. Green's telephoned request to President Roosevelt regarding the possibility of calling Federal troops, it is learned that the authorities have virtually completed arrangements for that measure.

It is reported that the Secretary for War, Mr. George H. Dern, and Major-General Connor, Commander of the First Corps, are en route from Boston to make a first hand survey, after which they will report personally to President Roosevelt as to whether Federal troops are needed.

Meanwhile, the textile negotiations continued to be deadlocked.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

It is reported from Stockholm that Princess Ingrid, granddaughter of the King of Sweden, has become engaged to Archduke Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne. The Princess is 24 and has often been mentioned as the possible bride of the Prince of Wales.

He is, however, applying for leave of absence.—Reuter.

He said that he did not wish to serve under Captain Carey any longer, as he no longer had any respect for him in view of his failure to get the lifeboat launched faster.

Mr. Dwight Randall, Chief Officer of the President Cleveland, also expressed the opinion that the boats could have been lowered sooner and more lives saved, and also asked to be relieved of his post.

A seaman of the President Cleveland, who was a member of the crew of the lifeboat sent to the Morro Castle, said in evidence that although he saw several persons on the deck, the crew of the lifeboat did not try to take them.

Mr. William Price, a New York policeman, who was a passenger on the Morro Castle, declared that after his wife was lowered into the water, the lifeboat refused to pick her up and she died.

CANTON LEVY FOR AIR DEFENCE

Monthly Conditions From Officers

FROM 20 CENTS TO $5.

[From Our Own Correspondent]
Canton, To-day.

Commissioned officers of the First Group Army are now required to contribute money for the aerial defence of Kwangtung, according to a decision of the Fourth Plenary Session of the Kuomintang organ of the Army.

The monthly contributions are:—

From Second Lieutenant to Captain, 20 cents.
From Major to Colonel, $1.
From Brigadier-General to General, $5.

This payment will be made monthly for one year.

It is pointed out by the Army Kuomintang organ that the Chinese defeat by the Japanese in the Shanghai war was due to the lack of resistance against Japanese bombing planes. Since the duty of the soldiers is to defend the province, their contributions of funds towards the air defence of Canton are necessary and desirable.

The Woman's Page

The Golden Glory

Pages From History Show Golden Hair Popular

QUEEN ELIZABETH VOGUE

Golden hair is one of the very nice little details which creep into history like a ray of vivid sunshine. When a celebrated man or woman had golden hair it was noted. For those who had not, but desired. "Those crisped, snaky, golden locks which make such wanton gambles with the wind," there were many artificial means of obtaining them. Golden hair has always fetched a high price in the market, but as those who were fortunate enough to possess it usually liked it to remain on their heads there was a considerable trade in golden hair dyes.

Solomon chose for his pages boys who had golden hair, but even when it was not a disgrace for a man to paint his face, he also powdered his hair with gold dust if it happened to be of the fair order.

Both Greeks and Romans admired golden hair, and apparently there never was a time when poets did not sing its praises. Apollo, the poet sun god, had golden hair, and the entire race of poets ever since have delighted in golden-haired beauties. Ovid had apparently a lady-love whose hair he admired greatly although it was not golden, and he complained bitterly and tragically of the unfortunate colour it became when the lady tried to transform it into a golden glory.

Golden-Haired Beauties

Amber has always been associated with the sun, and supposed to hold the virtue of the sun. Perhaps it was for this reason that Nero called his wife his "Amber-haired Poppaea." Poppaea's hair was apparently like streams of sunshine. Helen of Troy had tresses "sunnier than the wild-grape cluster," and so had poor unfortunate Fair Rosamond. The fairylike tresses of Elizabeth Woodville captured Edward 4th, and Lucrezia Borgia possessed the true golden hair, rich and gleaming like the sun.

The Queen's Hair

The colour of Queen Elizabeth's hair is rather a mystery for it was sometimes called gold and sometimes red. The Venetian Ambassador stated in a letter that Henry 8th, had the golden hair of a god, and, as Elizabeth was extremely proud of her hair, it was probably naturally golden to begin with, and later on artificially red. However, when it pleased her to do so she wore a golden wig, and the following day she would appear in a red one, for her hair evidently followed her moods.

In the middle ages there was a rage for golden hair. Almost all romantic writers raved about it, and artists painted it on the heads of Madonnas and Saints. At this time a saint having dark hair was almost unknown, and the ladies who let their ropes of hair flown down castle walls for their admirers to kiss always posseesd golden tresses.

Praise From Shakespeare

Shakespeare sings the praises of golden hair, but he is quite ready to do the same for the dark-haired beauty whom Byron definitely prefers. The women of Italy dyed their hair a rich gold, and sat on the roofs of their houses for all the world to see while it dried in the sun.

This "gold and topaz of the sun" for which there are many recipes in old writings was used by men as well as women, for nearly always this dye was recommended for the hair and the beard.

HAIRY FABRICS IN LAME

Hairy fabrics in lame, cellophane, and wool are being used by the Paris dressmakers. They are seen for afternoon and evening clothes in jumpers, sleeves and capes. The "fuzz" looks striking in all white for a jumper blouse, muffler, and high-crowned cap, to complete an ensemble with skirt and jacket in black silk, woven to show a narrow chenille stripe glinting with cellophane.

THE DEBUTANTE'S STUDY CORNER

Every modern mother would like to give her debutante daughter "a room of her own," but the exigencies of space in modern houses often forbid this. A solution is the "study corner," which can be contrived out of a corner of a big sitting-room, or half a debutante'e bedroom.

Weathered oak, bleached mahogany, sycamore, or walnut are the choice of restful colour suggested.

The bookcases all have adjustable shelves, and upon the tastes of the youthful owner depend the choice of book-shelves rather than cupboards. For reading at leisure or resting between engagements the easy chair has a sliding seat that converts it into a chaise-lounge.

HATS ARE VARIED

Hats, are most varied. A great many off-the-forehead models in felt are worn with suits; and the new four-cornered brimmed sailors in felt. One curious chapeau of black felt reminded me of a meat-cover! It had a crown exactly like one, with a curly little hook at the top. The brim was all crimped and wavy, and the whole thing was worn dead straight on the head, the same as the square-brimmed sailors.

"SPORT" NOVELTIES FOR ALL AGES

London.

London is now full of novelties coming under the elastic category of "sport," each jersey, cardigan, shirt and pullover being very carefully cut and fashioned. Even so, it is up to the individual wearer to see that her choice is made carefully.

Slim girls look best in the many shorter cardigans and coats to the waist-line. Very charming are the short, ribbed, wool cardigans cut just to reach over the waistline, with four sporting looking pockets fastened with queer wood or plain steel buttons. Older women will welcome the longer and straighter coat.

BRIDGE COAT REVIVAL

London.

One of the rather dashing garments of the Edwardian period that has made a return in the new fashion collections is the bridge jacket.

It is made in crepe satin, and takes a smart swinging line at the back. The sleeves are short, but not puffed—in fact, they are moulded to the shoulder, and produce a most becoming effect.

THE SMILE OF HEALTH.

Perfect health reflected in a bright smiling face: there would be many more such faces if people only took the trouble to ensure daily regularity, for one of the essentials of good health lies in the regular elimination of waste matter from the system.

PINKETTES

the tiny laxative pilules, ensures daily regularity; they aid digestion, tone up the liver, prevent biliousness, sick headaches, pimples and boils, ensure pure breath. An occasional dose will

KEEP YOU WELL

LUSTRE BUTTONS

Colour Combinations For New Coats

London.

Lustre buttons of Victorian bronze are seen on brown and green coats, which are mostly semi-fitted or belted to the figure on the bias plan with handsome fur collars. These may muffle round the neck in high choker fashion, dip at the back or sway on an entirely different line. This new movement encircles the back of the neck in a slightly high cuffed, evasive mood and ends by rolling round to frame a short squared yoke of the fur in front.

Colour combinations for these coats are unusual. Frocks show mastic under brown, rust red under grey, lighter rust with black, grey with brown, and nasturtium yellow with misty green, the green coat having an Alaska seal collar ending in lop-over tabs. Alaska seal encircles fore-arms in wide cuffs and a brown belt conforms.

WASHING CREPE MATERIALS

It is sometimes found that crepe materials, and satins with crepe backs, shrink after being washed. If this should happen put the garment back into the water and dry it again, stretching it by ironing carefully in both directions. In order to preserve the crinkled surface iron on the wrong side when practically dry.

EASIER SHAVING! Life of blade DOUBLED

It sounds too good to be true, but for your own sake you must try Scrubb's. You're bound to get a better lather in less time, shave more easily and double the life of the blade if you add a teaspoonful of Scrubb's to your shaving water.

BRIDGE NOTES

OVER TRICKS

by Ely Culbertson.

While Shakespeare did not play Bridge, in his writings he somewhere laid down an important principle which all Bridge players must master sooner or later or pay the penalty in lost games. Shakespeare said, "The game's the thing," and by that is to be understood to make safe your contract before chasing after overtricks.

However, not all Bridge players have learned this lesson, as the example below, furnished by Mr. John W. Jacobson of Toronto, Canada, proves. Perhaps West was just careless, but here is the hand:

East, Dealer.

East:—
Spades—K Q 4 3
Hearts—Q 8 7 6 5
Diamonds—A Q J 10
Clubs—

South:—
Spades—9 8
Hearts—10 4 3
Diamonds—K 7 6 4
Clubs—J 9 6 5

West:—
Spades—A J 10 6
Heart—A
Diamonds—9 8 5
Clubs—K 8 7 4 3

North:—
Spades—7 5 2
Hearts—K J 9 2
Diamonds—3 2
Clubs—A Q 10 2

West was the Declarer at a contract of four spades, and North, anxious to preserve his tenace positions, opened a trump. West won with the Ten and at once returned a diamond, finessing the Ten in the Dummy. South permitted this card to hold the trick. West returned to his own hand with the heart Ace and led a second diamond.

It is now obvious that if the Ace of diamonds is cashed, ten tricks can be made by a cross-ruff. However, West took a second diamond finesse, which lost to the King, and South returned a diamond, which was ruffed by North, who returned another trump. This was won in Dummy, the high diamond was cashed, and a low heart returned.

West still hoped to make the contract if South had three hearts to the King or if North had to win the third heart lead. However, on the second heart North made the very fine play of the Knave, allowing South to hold the third round with the Ten and return a club to defeat the contract.

HEAVY TOLL OF THE BRITISH ROADS

Town Of 180,000 People With No Deaths

WHERE FATALITIES ARE HEAVIEST

In the twenty-one weeks from March 11 to August 4, 2,858 persons were killed and 98,919 were injured on the roads of Great Britain, it is disclosed in a statement issued by the Ministry of Transport on August 9.

Tha week's total—which included the Friday and Saturday preceding Bank Holiday—was 148 dead and 5,628 injured.

This total of dead has been three times exceeded since April 7, when weekly records were instituted—in the weeks ending June 9 and July 7 and 28.

The total of injured is the second highest on record, having been exceeded only in the week ending July 7, when it was 5,778.

Attached to the report is a statement, promised by the Minister of Transport, Mr. Hore-Belisha showing the areas of the country where road accidents are heaviest, in proportion to population, and those where they are lightest. This shows that, in the 21 weeks ended Aug. 4;

Blackpool had the worst record among towns with over 100,000 population (8.86 deaths per 100,000), and Sunderland had the best, with not one death; and

Oxfordshire had the worse record among counties (23.21 deaths per 100,000), and Monmouthshire had the best (2.6 deaths per 100,000).

COATES AGAIN GIVES FINE DISPLAY AS COLONY LEAD

Beer Lacks Big Match Temperament

BASA WEAKEST OF LOCAL FOUR AS OMAR IMPROVES AGAINST SHANGHAI

Northern Criticism

Shanghai, September 9.

The Shanghai lawn bowlers in a spectacular finish on the last two ends, completed the rout of the Hong Kong bowlers, by registering a third straight win by the narrow margin of 22 shots to 21, on the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club green, yesterday.

On the same green, the Hankow bowlers confirmed the good opinion already formed of them by easily beating Shanghai by 23-18, and also registered their third straight win.

In both matches the bowling was exceptionally good. Whilst Hankow definitely were superior to Shanghai the match between Shanghai and Hong Kong produced the hardest tussle, although Shanghai were badly in arrears at the 19th. The last two ends will go down in the history of local bowling as the most remarkable recovery ever made in Interport matches. Shanghai, when all seemed lost, snatching victory by the narrow margin of one shot by getting a 5 on the 20th, and a 3 at the last end. It must be admitted that it was the failure of the Hong Kong skip, Omar, who had been bowling splendidly, to save on the last two ends that gave Shanghai the victory.

Coates Bowls Well

For Shanghai against Hong Kong, McLeod bowled a great game, as did Marshall, who had a fine

INDIANS WIN TITLE

K.C.C. Three Down And Two To Play

The Indian Recreation Club made certain of the Junior Division Championship last Saturday when they defeated the Kowloon Cricket Club by 6 shots.

Play on two greens had finished, and, when there were still two heads to be played on the remaining green, the Indians were only three shots in the lead. The Kowloon Cricket Club had a great chance of snatching a victory, but Dallah recorded scores of one and two on the last two heads for victory and the championship.

TEDDY FINCHER AS SKIP

E. C. Fincher, the Interport cricketer, displaced A. E. Silkstone as skip for the K.C.C. senior team in the Lawn Bowls League last week, but lost to J. C. Brown's Kowloon Dock rink by 22—19.

"Rebel Rob" Russell, Boston aspirant for the world wrestling crown, caught in the act of attacking his opponent, "Red" O'Dell, with a chair after being thrown out of the ring in a tempestuous bout in the Bean City. This is a new variation in the mat vaudeville.

INTERPORTERS DUE BACK WITH HANKOW FLAG

Disappointing Results Against Shanghai

BOWLERS ARRIVING BY EMPRESS THIS AFTERNOON

The Colony Interport Lawn Bowls team, comprising B. E. Maughan (Manager), U. M. Omar (C.C.C.), H. Beer (C.C.C.), A. E. Coates (C.C.C.), R. Basa (C.C.C.), E. G. Post (Police) and J. Watson (K.B.G.C.), return to the Colony this afternoon on the R. M. S. Empress of Japan from Shanghai.

Although their efforts against the Shanghai bowlers did not meet with the success anticipated, all three Interport matches being lost by very close margins, the Colony team, however, were victorious against Hankow by 21 shots to 19 after playing an extra head.

RESULTS OF VISIT

The following have been the results of matches played by the Colony's Interport bowls team to date in Shanghai:

September 2. Beat Yangtsepoo Bowling Club at Wayside Park by 30 shots to 10. The team—A. E. Coates, E. G. Post, H. Beer and U. M. Omar (skip).

September 3. Lost to Hongkew Golf Club and Junior Golf Club at Hongkew Park (Junior Golf Club green) by 15 shots to 19. The team—J. Watson, E. G. Post, R. Basa and H. Beer (skip).

September 4. Lost to Shanghai (1st Interport), after postponement due to

COLLYER' DEFEAT AS SKIP

L. Collyer, of the Civil Service, who usually plays No. 3 in L. Luck's rink, skipped for the first time last Saturday in place of R. R. Wood. He was beaten by W. E. Hale's Kowloon Bowling Green rink by 24—13.

Drake's Return Aids Champions

Returning to the game after a month's holiday in Japan, W. S. Drake, one of the three leading skips of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club's senior division team in the Lawn Bowls League, fully restored the team to their former strength as was clearly indicated by the result of their match against Craigengower "B." whom they beat by 91 shots to 39, creating a record.

Drake's rink (P. T. Farrell, J. S. Logan and J. G. Meyer) won their match against J. Cavanagh's rink by a margin of 39 to 9 in this match!

It was during Drakes absence that the champions lost the leadership of the League, being defeated by the Police and Craigengower "A".

Drake took up the game in 1929 and after four years with the Bowling Green second division team, during which period they won the junior league in 1931, he was promoted to the first division as a permanent ship for the first time this year. His rink's record this season has been particularly good, being placed sixth with 8 wins in 12 games played, having 66 shots in their favour.

Although not very successful in the singles competitions, Drake has won the Club skips' competition twice in succession in 1931 and 1932.

Interport honours have yet to come his way, his nearest approach being in a practice game against Shanghai last year.

Drake is an ardent bowls player and considers it an admirable form of recreation for the summer.

ATIENZA WINS HANDICAP AT CRAIGENGOWER

Beats Cavanagh By 21 To 13 In Final Round

Dr. V. N. Atienza (Scr.), won the Singles Handicap title of the Craigengower C.C. yesterday afternoon defeating J. Cavanagh (-5) by 21 shots to 18. Atienza gained an early lead, scoring 8 shots on the first three heads.

VITAL GAME FOR CRAIGENGOWER

Loss Will Mean End Of Championship Chance

SECOND DIVISION INTEREST NOW WANING

(By SHORT HEAD)

The lawn bowls programme is slightly curtailed again this week, but there is one most interesting match down for decision.

Craigengower Cricket Club "A" visit the Civil Service Cricket Club., and in view of the position of the former, the match is of vital importance. Although the Civil Service were surprisingly defeated in their last home fixture by Taikoo Docks R.C., they can always be relied on to provide stern opposition.

Craigengower cannot afford to drop any points if they are to win the Premier Division Championship. They have three well balanced rinks, and I have no hesitation in predicting a win in their favour.

The Police R. C. and Craigengower "B" are at home to the club de Recreio and Kowloon Dock R.C., respectively, and both home teams should win

As the Second Division Championship has been decided, considerable interest has been lost in this competition, but there is still the position of "wooden spoonist" to be filled. The Football Club appear destined to fill the vacancy, but it will be interesting to see if they can reproduce last week's form when they showed up well against a Craigengower team in a friendly match.

VISITORS FAIL AFTER TEA INTERVAL

THREE SKIPS STRIKE BAD PATCHES

(By SHORT HEAD)

THE DEFEAT OF CRAIGENGOWER "B" BY THE RECREIO BY 74 SHOTS TO 47, ON THE RECREIO GREEN LAST SATURDAY CAN BE SUMMED UP IN ONE WORD—TEA. UNTIL THE TEA INTERVAL THE VISITORS PLAYED GOOD BOWLS, AND HELD THEIR OPPONENTS IN CHECK, BUT AFTER THE BREAK, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF J. CAVANAGH'S FOUR, (E. TUCK, M. MEDINA AND W. GILL) THEY COMPLETELY CRACKED UP. THE RESULT WAS AN EASY WIN FOR THE RECREIO, INSTEAD OF A CLOSE TUSSLE.

The outstanding features of the game were the good bowling of Cavanagh on the first green, the fine drawing of A. H. Basto on the third and the complete eclipse of W. Ward on the middle green. Ward commenced well, but fared poorly in the latter stages.

Good heads on which the lay changed from one rink to the other with successive woods were witnessed on all three greens, but the majority of the best heads were seen in the game between Silva and Cavanagh. G. Marques and Silva appeared a little below form; nevertheless Cavanagh had to bowl accurately to hold them, and he succeeded in this so well that, if he did not steal their lay, he, more often than not, reduced it.

On the middle green the good heads were not as numerous as the fair ones, although probably the best head of the match was the 19th. D. C. Alves opened by drawing to the jack. G. Duncan followed, and displaced Alves wood, and also rested the jack. Alves then drew well and rested the jack on the opposite side. Drawing carefully Duncan again rested Alves' wood. H. Rozario and Ward each bowled "touchers" with their first woods, and brought their remaining woods very close.

T. V. Riberio played heavily into the lay and took the jack back to give the Recreio the lay. W. Brightman was slightly heavy with his first wood and carried through to bring his wood to rest in a useful rear position. With his second wood Riberio increased the lay in favour of the Recreio. Brightman again failed to alter it, and Basto then drew carefully to increase the Recreio's lay to three.

With a well directed wood C. S. Rosselet broke up the lay and carried back the jack to the ditch, converting the lay to one in favour of Craigengower. Basto placed a saviour to rule out Brightman's woods, but failed to draw for the shot. Rosselet had a splendid opportunity to increase the lay to two, but his wood was blocked, Craigengower taking the head by one shot.

Bad Spot Encountered

It so happened that Brightman and Rosselet lost their form just at their best, and, scoring on five as Riberio and Basto were playing successive heads, the home rink went 9 shots ahead. Craigengower won two of the remaining three heads, but Basto clung to his advantage and ran out the winner by 7 shots.

Unfortunately for Craigengower, A. A. Lewis struck a bad patch just about the same time, only his opponent was less merciful than Basto, taking six of the last seven heads and registering 16 shots to Lewis's one.

On this third green Basto drew so well that he literally won the game, at least he paved the way for victory. Lewis bowled well, but the first three numbers of his rink were so obviously inferior to Remedios, Basto and Alves, that it was more than he could do to pull them through every time.

MARCHENT'S RALLY UNAVAILING

Field Enters Final At Craigengower

W. V. Field entered the Final Round of the Craigengower Club Championship yesterday afternoon when he eliminated A. E. Marchent by 21 shots to 16.

Field led at the 9th head by 12 shots to 1, after which Marchent rallied to reduce the margin to 20 shots to 9 on the 21st head, and 20—16 on the 25th head. Field, however, took the match on the next head scoring the required single.

MARKING THE TOUCHER

PENALTY FOR NOT CHALKING WOOD

In a recent Home match at the 18th end the sides were 13 all, and at the following head "B" team had a toucher in the ditch which was not chalked. When it came to counting the end, this bowl would have been shot, but it was discovered that it did not bear the "toucher" mark, and was accordingly removed to the bank, leaving "A" team with three shots. The result was a win for "A" by 16-13.

It only goes to show that players should pay more attention to the rules, especially in important competition games where the penalty for negligence is often extremely heavy.

Coates Again Gives Fine Display As Colony Lead

duel with his opposing number, Coates, both of them bowling well. Jensen at times bowled well and saved on numerous occasion, but he was outplayed by Omar for the most part. The latter was bowling better than he had done in any of the other matches, but he failed his side at the most critical stage. Bailey was weak, but he came through with good woods when most needed in the last two vital ends.

For Hong Kong, Coates again proved himself a good lead. Beer started off very well but weakened badly in the last half and does not seem to have the big match temperament. Basa was the weakest man of the four.

LOCAL INTERPORT AQUATIC WINS

KWOK CHUN-HANG BREAKS RECORD

LAWRENCE WINS 220 YARDS FREE-STYLE

Kwok Chun-hang, who recently received an invitation to visit Australia for the Centenary Celebrations, rose to expectations last night when he won the 100 Yards Breast stroke in the Triangular Interport Swimming Gala in Shanghai in the Interport record time of 76 3/5 seconds.

This, with W. Lawrence's victory in the opening event, the 220 yards Free-style, gave Hong Kong the lead on the day's events, although the local swimmers failed in the relay race.

Results were:—

200 yards free style.—
1, W. Lawrence (Hong Kong).
2, N. Hammond, (Shanghai).
3, A. Logan (Shanghai).
Time: 2 min. 33 3/5 secs.

100 Yards breast stroke.—
1, Kwok Chun-hang (Hong Kong).
2, R. Norman (Tientsin).
3, E. Marques (Hong Kong).
Time: 76 3/5 secs.

Relay.—
1, Tientsin.
2, Shanghai.
3, Hong Kong.
Time: 2 mins. 9 1/5 secs.

Sprint Battle To-night

A terrific battle between Archie Logan (Shanghai) and W. Lawrence (Hong Kong) in the 100 Yards free-style race will probably feature the second night's programme of the Triangular Interport Swimming Gala at the French Pool, Shanghai to-night.

Noel Hammond, by virtue of his Shanghai championship win in 57 1/5 secs, should be an easy winner in this event, but the struggle for second place should be keenly fought out between Logan and Lawrence.

Logan, who was seen in Hong Kong last October as a second string, has improved amazingly to leap to the forefront of Shanghai swimmers. His best time for the distance is 59.2.5 secs, as compared to Lawrence's 59.1.5 secs. Lawrence is the stronger swimmer, and it is possible that the extra competition afforded by Logan and Hammond will goad him on to beating his previous best.

Colony Wins Expected

In the other two events, the 880 yards free-style and the Medley, relay race, Hong Kong should emerge comfortable winners. Lionel Roza-Pereira and A. A. Roza, Hong Kong's representatives in the half-mile event are capable of beating the best of the northerners, while the combination of Kwok Chun-hang (breast-stroke), Lau Po-hay (back-stroke), and W. Lawrence (free-style) will be a hard one to beat. The former two are champions of China in their respective styles, and record-holders in the Colony.

To-night's Events

The following are the competitors in to-night's Interport events:

100 yd. free-style—
W. Lawrence, E. B. Roza (Hong Kong); O. Ohlwein, G. Nigniewitzky (Tientsin), N. G. Hammond, A. Logan (Shanghai).

880 yd. free-style—
L. Roza Pereira, A. A. Roza (Hong Kong); Ohlwein, R. Norman (Tientsin); C. H. Raven, G. M. Unterberger (Shanghai).

Medley relay—
Lau Po Hay, Kwok Chan Hang, W. Lawrence (Hong Kong); O. Ohlwein, R. Norman, G. Nigniewitzky (Tientsin); W. Wagner, E. McAllister, N. G. Hammond (Shanghai).

London's Forecast

A forecast from London on the probable trend of the New York market, states:—

With little hope of a compromise regarding the strike situation, Wall Street is expected to experience another dull session.

The Wheat market is expected to open uncertain but not materially lower.

Rubber prices are expected to be a little lower.

Cotton prices may temporarily sag somewhat as the result of a deadlock in the strike situation and on liquidation, but the market is technically healthy with a strong cash position and a relatively steady stock market.

The export duty on native rubber from October 1 has been fixed at 20 guilders per 100 kilograms for dry rubber. The duties for other assortments range from 15 to 18½ guilders.

The dry rubber group consists of blankets of bark, crepe and all similar sheets manufactured by machinery not driven manually.

Lists for cash applications open and close on September 17, but conversion lists will be opened immediately and will be closed on September 28. — British Wireless Service.

TECHNICAL RALLY ON WALL STREET

Unsustained Declare Chartists

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 14, 9.24 a.m.)

New York, To-day.

The chartists' prediction of Wall Street indicates a technical, but unsustained rally.

Favourable factors yesterday were: (1) The Continental Can Co. has voted a 50 per cent. stock-dividend and placing the new stock on the annual basis of $2.40 per share. (2) The Air Reduction has voted an extra dividend of $1.50 per share, plus its regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents per share.

Unfavourable factors were: (1) The Standard Oil Co. of New York has lowered gasoline prices from fractions of a cent to one cent per gallon.

(2) The Textile Strike Board halts the arbitration move.

(3) Union leaders are predicting that the textile strike will last a month.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

CANADIAN NICKEL OUTPUT TREBLED

New York, To-day.—Canadian nickel production for the first six months of 1934 was 65,333,686 pounds against 22,760,291 pounds for the first six uonths of 1933. — United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

APATHETIC TREND UPHELD ON WALL STREET

STRIKE VIOLENCE UNSETTLES TONE

LATENT FUNDS ON MARKET

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 14, 9.24 a.m.)

New York, To-day.

The Stock Market was apathetic yesterday.

Favourable factors were the reports of the continuance of favourable earnings, and the latent funds on the present market awaiting investment.

Unfavourable factors were that the violence in the textile strike adds to business uncertainty and that the munitions investigation is retarding trading.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

S. E. Levy And Company's Report

In their market report, Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company, correspondents for Messrs. White, Weld and Company, New York state:

"Stocks:—We continue to think that good metal, packing, oil and mail-order shares should be purchased on weakness. No general recovery, however, is possible until a definite show-down on the labour question has been effected. Business:—420,000 shares.

"Wheat:—The volume of offerings is decreasing on declines and the wet harvesting weather in Western Canada is causing some apprehension. We again favour purchases of all grains on dips. Wednesday's sales: — 23,668,000 bushels.

"Cotton:—Further declines in the price would bring contracts to the market on the Government twelve cent loan basis, which would probably stimulate buying.

"Rubber:—Sentiment is somewhat mixed, with scattered Trade intrests being good buyers at the decline. Business done:—591 lots."—Reuter.

U.S. PRODUCTION CONTROL

A.F.L. Suggests Central Agency Formation

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 14, 9.24 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.

The American Federation of Labour, in its current monthly review of business, proposes controlled producion via a central agency representing labour the consumer, and the Government, because, firstly, the present recovery measures, if they succeed, can restore business only after a long period of time, and secondly, the recovery programme is unable to adjust production to needs. — United Press, per S. "TARZAN AND HIS MATE" A GRAND THRILLER

MARGARET SULLIVAN'S CHARMS IN "LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?"

JEAN MUIR NEW SCREEN "FIND" FEATURED IN "AS THE EARTH TURNS" AT THE ALHAMBRA

By Diane

"TARZAN and his Mate" will bring thrill after thrill to those who revelled in the adventures of Johnny Weismuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in the first M.G.M. picture, which proved — as this will undoubtedly do too— one of the biggest box-office attractions yet to be produced.

It is all a world of make-believe, but it is incredible, and you can't help gasping. Be prepared for noise. What with frenzied natives, drums, maddened animal stampedes, fights to the death, Johnny's wild call at every chance—to mention a few of the incidents—you are in for something that is better than a circus, with unrestricted appeal.

Johnny Weismuller makes an ideal Tarzan—that is enough praise, but the little Irish girl—Maureen O'Sullivan deserves the highest honours. She is pursued by savage lions up a cliff, tossed like an adagio dancer from the tops of trees, somersaults on the trapeze with apes to catch her—just one daring feat after another.

The story begins with our heroine mated to Tarzan and loving it. Neil Hamilton shows up with Paul Cavanaugh to search for ivory, and the latter's attempt to do away with Tarzan and win the girl for himself is responsible for reels of exciting thrills.

I want to say that the Los Angeles S.P.C.A. carefully watched the making of this film, and in the one scene alone where Tarzan kills so many lions, they really were humanely put to death with a bullet by an Inspector who stood on the side-naturally unseen. Personally I am not a lover of the wild animal film, but I cannot deny this is a great show, and everyone deserves credit for a stupendous adventure story. Not to be missed. (Queen's).

"Springtime For Henry"

Jesse Lasky produced "Springtime for Henry," and Frank Tuttle directed it. Benn Levy one of the best known playwrights (husband of Constance Cummings) wrote it, and it ran on Broadway and in London for a considerable time. Nigel Bruce will play the part of the husband of Nancy Carroll, which he originated.

The lead is now in the hands of Otto Kruger, seen here very often of late in drama, but I think this is his first fling into sophisticate comedy.

I am delighted to welcome back Nancy Carroll, but her role is rather a thankless one when compared with the "good" (but naughty) vamp played by Heather Angel. As is usual with stage plays transcribed to the screen, it depends upon sparkling dialogue and some piquant situations.

The plot, a frothy one, is mainly concerned with the amorous adventures of a wealthy philanderer, who is reformed by his "Uplifting Secretary." There is a decided twist to the ending, and I do not question that most people will think this one of the most amusing comedies of the season. Herbert Mundin repeats his role of valet as we have seen it many times. The action takes place mostly in two interior "sets," but it is beautifully produced. (King's).

"As The Earth Turns"

"As the Earth Turns" brings the the new screen "find" Jean Muir, and also gives young Donald Woods one big chance. Skilful direction and good acting make the characters live before your eyes. The unusual story tells of the loves, hates, and envies of three families living in the rural district of Maine. Jean Muir dominates the show with a gift of subdued eloquence, good looks and youthful appeal. David Landau and Dorothy Peterson give excellent support.

It is a human story with unusual characters, and if you want good acting with new faces then here is your chance. (Alhambra).

"This Side Of Heaven"

"This Side Of Heaven" is a story of life in a middle-class American family, with their joys and tragedies. Lionel Barrymore and Fay Bainter are the parents, Una Merkel the servant, and Mae Clark, Tom Brown and Mary Carlisle do well as the youngsters.

This will be followed by "Women In His Life" giving Otto Kruger a chance to shine.

The long-awaited return of Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina" comes next, and that should be seen more than once, although it is now admitted M.G.M. made a big mistake in giving the part of hero to John Gilbert. If you are an admirer of Garbo you will want to see this. (Star).

MARGARET Sullavan surpasses the heights she attained in her first film "Only Yesterday." In the powerful story by Hans Fallada — "Little Man What Now?" — she gives a natural direct understandable interpretation of the exacting role of the young wife who carries her husband through repeated discouragements.

There is tragedy, there is humour, but it brings a delightful message of hope to troubled hearts, in witnessing such courage, and is a lesson for most of us. It is not a story really, just a simple chronicle of everyday happenings, the trials, defeats, and aspirations during the post-war upheaval in Germany of a young couple. It could happen anywhere to anyone, and its simple theme reminds me of one of the best movies D. W. Griffith ever gave us. "The Greatest Thing In The World."

As the hero, Douglass Montgomery does exceedingly well, also Alan Hale, Christian Rub, de Witt Jennints, Monroe Owsley, Catherine Doucet (seen here in "As Husbands Go") and Muriel Kirkland.

You cannot fail to appreciate the outstanding work of three people, the two stars and the famous Director Frank Borzage.

They give the play quality and feeling in the most simple and natural manner, which makes it more eloquent than intricate plot, tense situations, and ordered climax could do. Don't miss seeing this at the King's.

"The Ninth Guest"

"The Ninth Guest" is a neat "manufactured" example of the mystery type of film that holds an appeal for most of us. I hear that this play ran for two years on Broadway.

We have eight people brought together in a skyscraper "Penthouse." They have been invited by mysterious telegrams to attends a party there in "their honour," only to discove that there is no host, and no one as any more knowledge of the affair than other. Even the servants have been engaged through an agency. The ingenious methods their host employs in playing his game of wits, "partying" them with their mysterious ninth guest—death. It is all ingeniously worked out, but I will not divulge anything more.

Director Roy Neill has done a workmanlike job, and the acting, especially from Genevieve Tobin, Donald Cook, and Hardie Albright is of the highest standard. Recommended. (Alhambra).

"Wild Gold"

"Wild Gold" brings us gold miners and gold diggers. It begins with John Boles, a drunken engineer, meeting a cabaret entertainer, Claire Trevor, who is running away from her husband, and who is in trouble with the police. She takes refuge in the shack of an old miner. No one explains why Harry Green arrives with a crowd of "golden girls", and as the show business is slack they turn prospectors.

The drunken husband of the heroine shoots an old man, and trouble then ensues, and to make matters worse, or perhaps to give the picture a lift-up, there is an impressively staged catastrophes wherein the whole community is engulfed. This exciting scene literally steals the show.

Roger Imhof, as usual in a small part, makes himself remembered. Monroe Owsley has played drunken brutes so often that he really does them to perfection. Claire Trevor, John Boles and Harry

STARS BETTER PAID THAN PRESIDENT

£63,000 Paid To The Leading Actor

No fewer than 110 persons employed in the film industry received larger salaries than President Roosevelt during 1933.

In addition, three other persons received salaries equal to that which President Roosevelt would have received if he had not reduced it, namely, £15,000.

The highest salary, paid to an unnamed actor, was £63,000, and the next highest, £59,250, paid to an "artist" who received £2,000 a week when working.

The highest salary paid to an actress was £38,200.

GRETA GARBO'S STAGE OFFER

Greta Garbo is considering a suggestion made to her informally by the New York Theatre Guild that she should appear on the stage this winter in the leading role of Eugene O'Neill's play, "The Life of Bessie Bowen."

PASSION ON THE FILM

Does a passionate movie scene have any effect on the participants? No! That's the emphatic declaration of Sylvia Sidney and Donald Cook, who make furious love in Paramount's screen version of Theodore Dreiser's famous novel, "Jennie Gerhardt." The film opens on Sunday at the Majestic Theatre.

Margaret Sullavan is seen at her best with Alan Hale in "Little Man, What Now?" which will be showing on Sunday at the King's Theatre.

CHINESE PICTURE'S RUN IN SHANGHAI

"The Fisherman's Song" On For 70 Days

"LAUREL" OF CHINA

Charlie Chaplin's theory that the day of silent films is not over by any means was most certainly upheld at the Lyric Theatre on Peking Road, Shanghai, where "The Fisherman's Song a Chinese movie enjoyed a run of more than 70 days.

An action picture in which pathos, joy and tragedy combine has proved a successful rival of "Two Sisters," which won such high praise. The film has been bought by Mr. Jacques Deval, to be shown in France.

Stars in the silent production are Miss Juanita Wang and Han Nan Kang, popularly known as the "Laurel" of China.

Britain's Naval Strength

To agitations urging that the British Empire should persist, even if alone, in disarmament, there is a limit beyond which our pacifists defeat their own cause. The Bishop of Birmingham's recent address in England was an example. He regarded war as such an evil, he said, that he would have the British people refuse to fight in any event whatever. "I would have my own country disarm, and for its safety trust in a policy of international righteousness," even though "it might end in disaster." In this cause, he declared, he would denounce the Treaty of Versailles and restore to Germany all her colonies now under British control. Dr. Barnes said he urged this because the alternative policy, so far as he could conceive (an important condition perhaps), will lead ultimately to a large-scale war. But whatever the danger of such results from the "alternative policy," there is no doubt that Britain's abandonment of her naval position, her denunciation of the Peace Treaty, and her resignation of her international authority and prestige, would start a world-wide war. Therein Australia would promptly have to seek a foreign ally, possibly Germany as occupier of New Guinea, or Japan as occupier of Singapore, and stand to arms for her life. Soviet Russia would descend upon Southern Asia to begin her plan of world conquest. The League of Nations would expire overnight. How much of international righteousness would Dr. Barnes and his fellow extremists in pacifism then have to offer his compatriots?

Mere talk in this strain by men who can command public attention does immense harm abroad. The interpretation abroad that gradually becomes accepted is that the British Empire must be ready to collapse. That is simply not true. The suspicion, and perhaps in places the hope, that it may be true only incites foreign Powers to rearm for the possible day. Britain's abdication of her sea power would invite competition, in armaments and then in war, among the likeliest successors. But leaving such Bedlamite nightmares aside, immediate effects tend to leave the pacifists stranded. On the morrow of Dr. Barnes's address the British Government declared, to the relief of the immense majority of the public, that the weakness of British defence forces constituted a temptation abroad to breach of the peace, and that it would proceed without further delay to prepare to replace obsolescent navy ships and double the air force. Even when so doubled, the Royal Air Force will not number half the total of military aircraft possessed by that model of all pacifists, Soviet Russia. The Admiralty's plans disclosed the proposals for new battleships to replace those of the fleet now approaching the age limit. That work and the further programme for cruiser replacement will have to be initiated next year or in 1936. If British building replacement should be thereafter further delayed, still without any international agreement to limit armaments, then the policy desired by Dr. Barnes might seem to be on the way.

The British Battle Fleet, the core of the Navy's strength, is getting old. The "battleship holiday" agreed upon with Japan and the United States at the London Conference in 1930, expires on December 31, 1936. If the international conference of next year should not agree to a further modification of programmes, then Britain will have to build to her own needs. There is no need for alarm, the Admiralty is ready with its plans. But there is need for the public to understand the value of supporting its Government in the representations to foreign Powers now being prepared for the 1935 conference. At the end of 1933 Britain and the dominions possessed 53 cruisers. 39 of them within the age limit and 14 of them above it. These old cruisers are now becoming over age (death-traps in war) at the rate of six a year. Even with the building now going on, Britain cannot till after 1936 put into service more than 31 to 35 cruisers within the age limit. And the minimum number required in the event of a great war would be 70. Does anybody believe that inaction by the British Government in face of these facts will encourage world peace? The decision Britain has taken is to prepare provisional programmes. None of the Treaty Powers has yet built over the allotted treaty strength; what each is doing is to prepare a building programme, for reduction purposes if the conference can reach a bargain, and for putting into operation if the conference fails. Japan is reported to be pressing for parity instead of the 5-5-3 ratio. This is partly, no doubt, a bargaining move. The Japanese newspaper "Asahi" recently reported from London an indication of Britain's willingness to discuss a ratio of 5-5-4. But in any case Japan's claim is not the only obstacle. France and Italy both declined to be bound by the London Treaty restrictions, and their new building is causing great concern in London.

One hundred years ago that great eccentric and fine poet, "Parson Hawker," began his work in the remote Cornish parish of Morwenstow.

He is said to have gone about his parish wearing a blanket, through a hole in which he thrust his head. When taking services he wore scarlet gloves and peculiar yellow vestments.

Cornwall is still a refuge for eccentric clergymen.

There is the rector of a lonely place under the Bodmin moors who has put a six-foot barbed wire barricade round his rectory. Several Alsatians ward off intruders.

HOW TO EMPTY A THEATRE

In Britain you must not have more than 10 parts in 10,000 of carbon-dioxide on the premises or hang hats and cloaks in the corridors.

You have got to protect outside staircases from frost and snow (rain does not matter).

If you fit a door with an automatic bolt you must paint "Push bar to open" on it in block letters at least 4 inches high.

If you have an organ it must be ventilated to the open air and you must not have any revolving doors.

There are innumerable precautions for emptying a theatre quickly; but no hints about how to fill it.

NEW COMMON SENSE ON THE BEACH

SUN-BATHING BARELY A DECADE OLD

EVOLUTION OF COSTUMES

(By James Laver)

London.

As you pick your way delicately over a modern beach trying your best not to stumble over a bronzed limb or put your foot in the middle of a bare back, do you ever reflect how modern all this is, or pause to wonder: "Who started it?"

For modern it certainly is; sea-bathing is less than two centuries old, and sun-bathing is barely a decade. The Greeks bathed, of course, and the Romans built themselves magnificent baths, but with the decay of the Ancient World the human body vanished from respectable sight for more than a thousand years. There were bath-houses in the Middle Ages, but they were of ill-repute. Certainly nobody bathed in the sea, except by accident, until almost the middle of the eighteenth century.

There was one bathing machine on Scarborough beach in 1735—so much we know from an old engraving—and we may assume that other resorts had one too.

But mankind needs an excuse for enjoying itself and throughout the ages there has been none better than the plea of health. It was in 1750 that Dr. Russell brought out his Latin treatise on the beneficent effects of sea-water, both for external and internal application, and the great trek to the sea began.

People began to bathe, but they were still far from doing it in our open and off-hand fashion. The bathing machine, enlarged and improved, enabled you to enjoy your dip in complete privacy and, in the middle of swarming crowds, to have the sea to yourself.

Bathing Machines Vanished

Bathing machines now seem almost to have vanished from the earth, but most of us who are over thirty must remember them. Indeed, I recently found them in full swing (swing is the word) on the beach at Zandvoordt, in Holland. A wooden box on wheels stood on the sand. You entered the dark and smelly interior and undressed.

Then a horse was put into the shafts; the crazy vehicle lurched forward, swung round, backed into the sea, and when you opened your little front door the vast horizon was before you and the salt water lapped against your wooden steps. If you chose to keep near your refuge it was almost impossible for anyone to see you, unless the shore curved very sharply, and even then the watcher needed a powerful telescope.

Even these precautions, however, seemed insufficient, and until quite late in the nineteenth century women's bathing machines were fitted with a canvas hood which opened like an umbrella. If you were very shy you never ventured outside this structure, for under its canopy you were in a private bath of sea-water.

If you were more daring, you descended your steps under the protection of the hood, and then, with only your head visible, you showed yourself to the great immensity.

Male and female bathers were, of course, vigorously segregated, and children were not allowed to play in the water, but were violently ducked by sturdy bathing women. These bathing women also ducked adults, and took their duties very seriously. It was all highly medicinal, no doubt, but not, one would think, one of the pleasures of life.

Relaxed Restrictions

As the fashion of going to the seaside spread, bathing machines multiplied, and gradually (oh! so gradually) the restrictions were relaxed. But no real progress could be made so long as the bathing machine rode rough-shod over the beach. It was the wicked French who first undermined its authority, for they began to erect little stationary cabins out of reach of the tide.

What an innovation! For now the reckless bathers were compelled to walk down to the water in full view of the watchers on the beach. A women's journal of the eighties warns modest people at Continental resorts to bathe very early in the morning when no one is about.

The bathing dress now began its long evolution, and from the biological point of view it obviously belongs to a degenerate species, for it has grown steadily smaller and smaller. At first women had worn garments like sacks or loose night-gowns drawn in with strings at the neck, and in a way this was comparatively sensible, for the garment floated on the surface of the sea and allowed the water to reach the body beneath.

But more elaborate garments were soon devised, so elaborate that one wonders if the water ever penetrated them at all. From the throat to the elbow, and from the elbow to the knee the body was hidden. Even the shape of the figure was lost in loose flounces and baggy folds, and as late as 1910 there was a joke in Punch which shows that from the other side of a low barrier it was impossible to tell whether a woman was dressed for bathing or just wearing her ordinary clothes.

France As Pioneer

The French again led the way and some of the costumes worn on Continental plages in the 'eighties were skin-tight—tighter, one might say, for they had corsets underneath. And very often the costume included stockings. Even the bathing dresses of the years immediately after the war seem strangely voluminous in modern eyes, and the present type of costume was not even usual until the middle 'twenties.

Once more an excuse was needed, and once more the excuse was health. Not only was sea-bathing good, but sunbathing was good also, and once that was generally accepted the cause of "modesty" was lost.

For bathers were no longer content to rush furtively into the sea and rush out again. They persisted in lying on the beach in their bathing costumes, and the designers of those costumes cut more and more out of them until from the back they were nothing but a pair of drawers, and sometimes from the front nothing but a pair of drawers and a brassiere.

Men's bathing costumes have a somewhat different history. At first men in the shelter of their machines wore nothing, then little striped drawers, then those horrible, ill-fitting one-piece garments which would have turned Apollo himself into a scarecrow. It is only within the last decade that men's bathing costumes have been anything but an offence.

SHANGHAI-CANTON AIR SERVICE RESUMPTION STILL UNCERTAIN

BROADCAST REPORTS ARE REFUTED

TWO AMERICAN PLANES ON ORDER DELAYED

EXTENSION CONTEMPLATED

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, To-day.

"We have no news as to when the Shanghai-Canton air service will be resumed," an official of the China Travel Service, agents of the China National Aviation Corporation, stated this morning.

"There are repeated vernacular press reports stating that this service will be resumed soon," he continued. "Even the local broadcasting station has made three announcements to this effect, but this is not true. A Nanking official news agency at Hong Kong stated that our service will be resumed in October 1. We wish this were true."

It is learned that the China National Aviation Corporation has placed an order for two Douglas Dolphin amphibian planes from the Douglas Aircraft Factory, but the labour disputes and strikes in the United States have delayed the delivery of these two machines. Vernacular press reports stating these two planes have arrived at Shanghai are incorrect.

As the exact date for the renewal of this service, is uncertain, the South-West Aviation Corporation is planning to extend its service from Canton to Foochow via Swatow and Amoy. This company is maintaining air services between Canton and Nanning, and between Canton and Pakhoi via Mowming and Hoihow.

Today's Short Story.

CONTRARY MARY

By H. A. Manhood

DUSK was settling like grape-bloom on a ripened earth when I heard a familiar plunging and cursing and knew that Constable Winterway was breaking through my hedge on his way to visit me. In five years he had only once used the gate and that was when he carried a summons in connection with revolver practice on a Sabbath. Official entry on official business, but better the hedge for a friendly call. A nice thought, if one examines it, characteristic of the man.

Come to the hut, he poked his head inside, winking humorously in greeting, stamping lustily on the mat in elaborate pretence of boot-cleaning, barely escaping a pot of jam dislodged from the shelf over his head. The jam replaced, he produced with an air of casualness an excellent pair of cock pheasants from under his cape, holding them under the table among the apples, logs and potatoes.

"Run 'em down on me bike," he explained solemnly: "Thought you'd like 'em."

"Good work! Cider or perry?"

He preferred two-year cider to three-year perry, emptying the mug in one grateful gulp.

A contented sighing and shrugging and then the plump walnut nose twitched inquiringly: "Nice smelling tobacco." I pushed the tin across and he stuffed a huge pipe: "Nicely out of the way, this hut of yours," he mused, and settled back with fine appreciation of the comforts. Immense and stately in the half-light, there was a nobleness in his repose, and it was fitting that moral reminiscence should flow from him.

"I found a kitten in a snare, too," he said. "But I knew you wouldn't want that. A merry little thing, wild as whisky. I gave it to old Teago Flip of Maidenbrook. Fond of animals he is. He looked like a kitten in a wire himself once. I told him to call it Mary, but he only grinned. That was his wife's name. She was drowned. A rum story."

"New to me."

"Well, well! But then you'm a newcomer with only five years' history back of ye. Happened ten years ago, this did. It looked like murder, first off, simple can't-help-it murder. I thought so meself when they told me they'd found the body in a backwater of Maidenbrook. Energetic and sturdy as a lighthouse she'd been, with a rare old prickly tongue, an ex-midwife with no troubles of her own, born to rule us surely as a bell is made to ring. Mary Must was her maiden name and it was true enough. No pleasure in her, anyway, that I could see, and when I heard the news I just naturally thought that Teago had lost patience.

"Mild little chap he was then, much the same as now, damp and weak-whiskered in the face and nervous as a trout. They said his mother hadn't been able to agree with his father whether they'd have a boy or a girl, and Teago sort of suffered from the misunderstanding. Anyway, muddle or not, there was Teago, born bedazedly with a hedgehog of a mind and a stutter on his tongue. He farmed a bit of land with all his heart, as you might say, and made lavender water in his spare time, just for the sweet fun of the thing.

"'Twas me and Dunrobin had to be taking him along for inquiry. Excitable man, this Dunrobin, very! Well, him and me, we find old Teago singing to himself in his cracked old way—it sounded like someone bouncing a roll of barbed wire—and slinging his wife's gear out of an upper window as if he meant making a scarecrow. Dunrobin ordered him to stop and come down at once, but Teago didn't seem to hear. He just went on tipping things out, and a box happened to catch Dunrobin on the ear. The fat was properly in the fire then. Before I could stop him Dunrobin bounced upstairs and clumped old Teago silly, lugging him down by the scruff of his neck. Resisting arrest he called it, and it meant we had to carry old Teago to the station because his legs weren't working.

"For days after that there was no getting any sense out of Teago.

"Hurt and muddled he was and small blame to him. He slept a lot but wouldn't eat. At the inquest he only nodded dreamy-like as if 'twas all child's play. The same in court until he saw the calendar on the wall. Then he remembered something. I could see him counting away on his fingers, muttering to himself. Something about a cow called Cosy and five shillings paid away for service of a bull. Calf due y'see, and he felt he'd wasted time enough. Up he hops in a hurry and looks for his cap and the room went blue. The superintendent rumbles up with blood in his eye: 'Well?' he snaps.

"Old Teago looked him over meekly: 'Got to go now, Oxlade.' (He'd known him as a boy.) 'Leave 'ee to finish rest yourselves. Job of calving back along.'

"It looked as if there might be another death right away, but the super's buttons saved him. One or two or us tried to make old Teago sit down again but he bumbled so loudly that all the magistrates stood up and the chairman demanded an explanation. Hot as pepper old Teago clumped to the bench.

NAVAL OFFICER'S WIFE CAUTIONED ON TRAFFIC SUMMONS

"Motorists Should Know The Streets"

MOTOR CYCLIST CAUTIONED

Summoned for driving her car, No. 1957, on a road closed to traffic on September 1, Mrs. Skyrme, wife of Lieutenant-Commander F. H. E. Skyrme R. N., was this morning cautioned by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy.

Traffic Inspector Alexander said that defendant came down from Hospital Road and turned into Eastern Street.

Mrs. Skyrme pleaded not guilty, saying that there was no traffic sign at the top of the street until she came down to the bottom.

Mr. Hamilton commented that motorists should read traffic regulations and that it is the motorist's business to know the streets.

Not Full Control

Mr. G. W. K. Crawford, driver of motor-cycle No. 68, was also cautioned for failing to have full control of his machine, by letting both his hands off the handlebars, on September 4, in Yee Wo Street.

Mr. F. R. Rack, driver of private car No. 2687, was cautioned on a summons for leaving his car unattended for half an hour outside the Asiatic Building.

Leung Chi-sun, driver of car No. 3169, and Chan Chun, driver of car 1298, were both fined $15 each for dangerous driving around the bend below Wongneichong Gap.

Most Dangerous Bend

In imposing the fine Mr. Hamilton said that that is the most dangerous bend in the Colony to attempt passing other cars.

A fine of $10 was imposed on Cheung Loi, driver of motor van No. 2982, for speeding from No. 7 Police Station to the Ko Shing Theatre.

It seems only the other days that Jackie Coogan was toddling around in Chaplin pictures, but here he is grown up and preparing to wed Toby Wing, cinema actress, according to Hollywood reports. The two are here shown.

"It is only a schoolboy's prank, he only lives a little way from the school and jumps on the bus when he is in a hurry. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for riding on bus No. 129 without paying his fare.

As the defendant did not appear in court his bail of $20 was estreated.

Market Factors

Messrs. S. E. Levy & Co., received the following telegram through Reuter:—

Favourable factors before the opening of the market were:—

Dividend news tends to bolster sentiment. The failure of setbacks to dislodge important liquidation is believed to be due to expectations of a belated seasonal improvement in business.

Unfavourable factors were:—

Incentive is still lacking from the market. The continued liquidation of Government bonds, which is partly attributed to a mild revival of inflationary ideas following the Marine elections.

Fox Films expect their earnings to amount to about $350,000 up to February 21, 1935 and about $1,000,000 for the financial year ending in April, 1935.

Night Telegrams

The following telegrams were received through Reuter by Messrs. S. E. Levy & Co. last night:—

Production of nickel in Canada for the first six months totalled 65,334,000 lbs., against 22,760,000 lbs. last year.

The market is dull and movements are very narrow. Traders are disposed to await a clarification of the prevailing uncertainties. A quiet and uninteresting market seems to be indicated.

Bank Clearings totalled $4,378,000,000 for the past week, against $4,148,000,000 during the corresponding period of last year.

Brokers' Loans totalled $796,000,000, compared with $824,000,000 the previous week.

The Otis Elevator has declared its regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share. Several adjustments in gasoline tank-wagon and retail prices were made in New York and New England. A reduction of one cent a gallon has been posted in Albany and Troy.

E. A. Pierce Co.'s Report

In their market report, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, correspondent for Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company New York state:

"Socks:—There continues to be no definite reason to recommend the purchase of stocks.

"Grain: — The market received support after early selling. The final prices were little changed, with the cash situation remaining strong. There was some tendency to watch the bonds and stock markets and the textile strike.

"Cotton: — There was hedging and liquidation on the news that a deadlock had been reached in the textile strike, but there was considerable buying by the Trade at the 13 cent level and we look for an increasing Trade demand on declines. Producers were indifferent sellers.

"Rubber:—The easiness in London encouraged further selling here. The principal sellers were dealers with London connections. Selling subsided at round the low levels, where the market met with a good deal more support.

"Brokers' Loans have decreased by $28,000,000."—Reuter.

40 SHIPS ENGAGED IN ARCTIC

Soviet Planning Varied Expeditions

ICE-BREAKER ASSISTANCE

Moscow.

The "Sibiriakov" and "Chelyuskin" expeditions proved that the Northern Sea Route can be used for navigation. All Arctic expeditions are now being organized and conducted under the auspices of the Board of the Northern Sea Route.

Up to 40 ships will be engaged in expeditions this summer, of which 10 ships will engage in Arctic exploring expeditions, and about 30 in commercial sailings in the Arctic seas. Essential assistance will be rendered them by a fleet of ice-breakers.

Taken New Route

The cruise of the ice-cutter "Lidtke" now attracts attention of the whole Soviet public opinion, as the most responsible expedition. "Lidtke" will pass the Northern Sea route not from West to East, but from Vladivostok to Archangel, the first voyage of a Soviet vessel in this direction. One such attempt was made previously by Captain Vilkitsky in 1914. But Vilkitsky could not make it in one navigation season and was forced to winter in ice.

The "Lidtke" expedition consists of 75 persons-scientific workers and crew. The expedition is charged with the task to help three Soviet timber-carriers to extricate themselves from ice near Samuel island where they have been jammed since last year. After this, "Lidtke" will conduct the ships of the Kara Sea expedition to the mouth of the Lena river.

To Verify White Spot

A tremendous white spot exists on the map of the East-Siberia Sea. The belief was entertained over 200 years ago that the so-called Andreyev land is situated there. The "Lidtke" expedition which will have an airplane at its disposal, will try to verify it.

Of the other expeditions, the cruises of ice-breakers "Sibiriakov," "Sadko," and "Rusanov" should be mentioned. The icebreaker "Siberiakov" from Archangel—to Vladivostok, under the leadership of Professor Schmidt, is leaving Archangel in the latter part of July for Cape Chelyuskin.

"Rusanov" For Nordwick

The ice-breaker "Rusanov" is leaving for Nordwick Bay to bring there polar explorers who will spend the winter there.

"Sadko" will proceed to the Northern Land, to relieve the explorers wintering on the Kamenev islands, and to establish a new station on Cape Olovyany.

"Sadko" was raised from the bottom of the sea only last year, after having been there for 16 years.

All expeditions are accompanied by splendid scouting airplanes piloted by experienced polar fliers.

With Germany's form of government in the balance recently, royalists worked for the restoration of the monarchy. One faction favoured the return of the Hohenzollerns in the person of the ex-Kaiser, shown at left with his wife, Princess Hermione. Another, said to have had the support of the Prussian Premier, General Wilhelm Goering, hoped to place Prince Phillip of Hesse (at right with wife) on the vacant throne. The Princess is the former Princess Mafalda of Italy, and this selection would undoubtedly have received the support of the Italian Premier, Signor Mussolini. Prince Phillip has long been active in the Nazi movement.

ANIMALS IN THE FILMS

British Cenors To Call Conference

QUESTION OF CRUELTY

The British Board of Film Censors is to call an international conference of organisations interested directly or indirectly in animal life, with a view to arriving at some international agreement regarding the exhibition of animals in films.

The difficulties the board has had to meet have become acute since the introduction of trained animals as an integral part of dramatic films.

With regard to these films the decisions of the board are:

1. That it must maintain its standard of not allowing any incident on the screen depicting cruelty. Pain or suffering, whether caused by accident or intention, is "prima facie censorable."

2. That it cannot allow any incident, if it could be reasonably supposed to have been produced by means which necessitated cruelty or restraint amounting to cruelty.

After taking legal opinion, the board finds that it cannot censor an animal film unless cruelty is actually visible or may be reasonably inferred from what is shown on the screen.

TALKIE TALKS

Green make the most of their opportunities, but the material is hardly worthy of their talent. (Queen's.)

"The Trumpet Blows"

In "The Trumpet Blows," George Raft, after a series of parts as gangster, dancer, and gentleman, steps forth as a bull-fighter in Mexico.

The story tells of a successful bandit (Adolphe Menjou) who wants his brother to be a "gentleman." The younger one develops a streak of cowardice, but that is finally conquered. They both love the same girl, but the elder brother steps aside and gives his blessings. The Mexican settings are authentic, and the bull-fight sequences well done.

All the sympathy goes to Menjou, who gives one of his most polished and well-characterised performances.

Frances Drake, (seen here in "Bolero") was well known in British films as Frances Dean. She is lovely to look upon, and her dancing makes up for her lack of histrionic ability. (King's).

"Wonder Bar"

"Wonder Bar" is a gay sophisticated musical with a "Grand Hotel" theme—pretty girls, sumptuous settings, lovely music, marvellous dancing, and a super cast headed by Al Jolson, Dolores del Rio, Kay Francis, Dick Powell, Ricardo Cortez and many more. One of its most outstanding numbers is the dance by the greatest step-dancer of the day, young Hal le Roy, seen here of late in Warner Bros "Shorts." Mr. Jolson kindly allowed his dance to stay in the production, as it did not detract from the spotlight so blazingly turned on him. As Mr. Jolson is the owner of the Rights- "of Wonder Bar," he occupies the screen as much as possible. Apart from this criticism, the show is a gorgeous one, and will be at the Alhambra on the 22nd. Make a note of the date.

"A Hollywood Party"

A strange ingredient for a musical—Mickey Mouse, Laurel and Hardy, Charles Butterworth, Polly Moran, Lupe Velez and Jimmy Durante. These are a few of the principals to be seen in "A Hollywood Party." Add to this distinguished gathering the Albertina Rasch Dancers and a few trained animals.

It is worth seeing alone for the "March of the Chocolate Soldiers" the Mickey Mouse cartoon in colour. Also the very amusing sequence between Lupe and Laurel and Hardy.

Jimmy Durante has his admirers, Charles Butterworth, that delightful comedian is wasted; and Polly Moran does her best. Ted Healey and his "Stooges" bring some laughs, as does Frances Williams.

Eddie Quillan and June Clyde supply the love interest, but Mickey steals the show and next in order of merit comes Laurel and Hardy. They are worth anyone's money. (Queen's).

"Fog"

Three murders take place on a fog-enveloped ocean liner in "Fog," in which Donald Cook is the detective in love with Mary Brian, Reginald Denny also in love with her is the chief suspect, and Robert McWade, the millionaire who is strangled. It is quite thrilling and is well acted. Worth seeing. (Central).

"Madam Butterfly"

No part that Sylvia Sydney ever played was more suited to her talent and beauty than "Madame Butterfly". With Cary Grant and Charles Ruggles, this is a film I highly recommend.

It will be followed by the inimitable pair Wheeler, and Woolsey with Thelma Todd in "Hips Hips Hooray."

"Sitting Pretty" with Ginger Rogers, Jack Haley and Jack Oakie and the most delightful song numbers, is a musical that should be seen at least twice. I know that it proved to be so popular at the Oriental that they have been requested to revive it. (Oriental).

COWBOYS v COSSACKS

Which are the greatest riders, Cossacks or American Cowboys? In "King of the Arena," Universal's swift paced western circus drama, starring Ken Maynard which is now playing at the Majestic Theatre both types of excellent horsemen exhibit their prowess to provide the picture with many of its rousing thrills.

NEW COMMON SENSE ON THE BEACH

Have we reached the limit? It would be a pity by abuse of the present freedom to offer any kind of excuse to the prudes and busybodies who are for ever trying to keep our bodies hidden (not only from their own jaundiced eyes, but from the life-giving sun and air).

Some people think this new freedom of ours is the New Paganism. I say it is the New Common Sense.

CONTRARY MARY

"'Excuse me, sir, m'lord. Got to go now. Cow to be looked to.'

"'Nonse, Flip. Your cow will be looked after. Surely you realise the seriousness of your position, that you are charged with the murder of the dead woman, your wife?'

"That's how the chairman answered him, all wine and biscuity, but old Teago wasn't rattled at all.

"'Murder?' He scratched his head just as if he was planting the word inside and looked like the middle of a winter for a minute. And then he clapped his great fists together and laughs a hell of a rollicking laugh.

"'Cripes 'a' mercy, sir, m'lord. Ye can't be sober!'

"That fired the super all over again, but the chairman wasn't annoyed. 'Quite sober, Flip, and serious, too.'

"'Ye mean ye really don't know the way of her going?' Old Teago cocked his head like an old terrier.

"'Indeed, we do not. Haven't we been asking for the truth of it?'

"'Dead sober? Well, sir, m'lord, I don't mind telling ye at all, and if ye've a wife 'twill be easy understanding. 'Twas like this. A terrible woman she was for having her own way. Black was white with her and a turnip square, if ye follow me. Couldn't say naught but what she'd think different, though I suppose, she couldn't help being contrary, no more than a cuckoo can help being a damned nuisance in the spring. If I mentioned the turn of the weather she'd pull me words inside out and pray for rain to prove me wrong. If I brought home a rabbit she'd chuck it out and pine for a hare, and if I thought of planting rhubarb she'd fancy celery, and when the celery was sprouting she'd swear 'twas rhubarb she'd wanted all along. 'Twas God Almighty's own game keeping pace with her, if ye'll excuse me.

"'Nice robin, I'd be saying, but no, 'twas a blackbird. Next time to please I'd say one was t'other when it wasn't and then she'd flare up and spit like hollymolly and didn't. I know a robin when I see one? Last Sunday I sort of mentioned apple sauce to go with some griskin and all we got was apple sauce. I reckon the meat's there yet. I thought I'd take a go to church in the morning, but she didn't like the idea at all. I was to wait and go with her in the evening. So I waits and we goes and we comes to the plank over the brook. Afloating it was in the rise of the water, and I says I'll be going first to see if 'tis safe. But the old girl wasn't going to have that. She'd go first and I wasn't the man to interfere. When she's halfway across the plank tips and in she goes and knowing the damned contrariness of her I runs upstream to where I thought she'd be coming. But damme if the old water didn't make her go its own way and 'tis the shock killed her, sir, m'lord, and no blame to meself for running wrong.'"

Stroking his great nose very solemnly, Winterway humped to his feet: "And that's the solemn truth of it, believe it or not. Sometimes now, I see old Teago doubled up with laughing the way he might be a fool or a wise man pleased with himself. You never can tell and I'm not trying. Dunrobin? Oh, he fell off his bike near Maidenbrooks one night and woke up smelling of gin and rosewater, so that his wife lost heart and faith in him, thinking he'd been gallivanting. Made life a misery for him she did, until he died of apoplexy. Yes, Teago makes rosewater and a sort of gin on the quiet....."

GIANTS FALTER IN U.S. BASEBALL

Blanked By Paul Dean To Lose 2 To 0

SENATORS DEFEATED

New York, To-day.

New York Giants, world baseball champions, again suffered the ignominy of being blanked in the major league American baseball, when Paul Dean shut their batters out for 12 innings to enable St. Louis Cardinals to win by 2 to 0.

Washington Senators, 1933 American league champions, suffered a similar fate, being blanked by Detroit Tigers, leaders of the league. Rowe pitched for the Tigers to fan the Senators batsmen and give his team victory by 2 to 0.

The game between Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns was postponed owing to rain.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:
